

Aptitude Test - Motor Coordination Example

Short Answer

1. Manual dexterity is the ability to coordinate eyes or fingers rapidly and accurately in making precise movements with speed.

During the General Aptitude Test, manual dexterity will be tested using a pegboard similar to the one pictured below.

There is no proper method of studying or book to use for this area.

